the Planning Commission was set up with the objective of having a systematic process of planning in the nation so that the right strategy could be used for the appropriate utilization of resources of the country, for the needs of the present and the development of the future.

Activity

Group Discussion

Teacher can divide the class into five groups. Each group consists of three or five members and discuss the examples given below in the class.

What may be development for one may not be development for the other. Discuss.

Example 1: More wages means development for a worker, but it can go against the entrepreneur.

Example 2: A rich farmer or trader wants to sell food grains at a higher prices but a poor worker wants to purchase it for low prices.

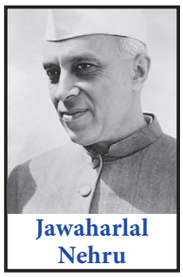

Example 3: Construction of a dam means more and cheap power, but people who will lose their habitat will demonstrtate.

Example 4: To get more electricity, the industrialists may want more dams. But this may submerge the agricultural land and disrupt the lives of the people.

In this scenario it is worthy to follow the concept of sustainable development.

The need for economic planning was realized in India even before independence. In 1936, M.Visvesvarayya published a book entitled 'Planned Economy for India' in which he proposed a ten year plan for India. He is considered a pioneer of economic planning in India. In 1938, the National Planning Committee was initiated within the All India Congress Committee by Netaji Subhash Chandra Bose. It had the task of preparing an economic plan for India so that many of the economic problems of the nation could be addressed. The committee could not complete its task due to the outbreak of the world war II and the imprisonment of some of the national leaders. In 1944, the Bombay Plan was prepared for economic development by Indian industrialists M.N.Roy. He proposed a plan which was called People's plan which gave more importance to agriculture and small scale industries. Later, the Gandhian Plan was put forward by Shriman Narayan Agarwal in 1944 and in 1950 Jayaprakash Narayan drafted the Sarvodaya plan. All these plans aimed at improving the economic conditions of the nation.
