20.01 Dimensions of New Economic Policy

There are three dimensions of New Economic Policy. They are explained below.

The base for New Economic Policy in various countries of the world is Dunkel Draft, which was all about the General Agreements on Trade and Tariff. Mr. Arthur Dunkel (1932-2005) submitted a 22000 page document for the World Trade Organisation (WTO) and followed by many Nations to adopt their respective New Economic Policies. India is one among such nations to commit itself to the New Economic Policy in 1991.

20.02 Meaning and forms of Liberalization

Liberalization refers to laws or rules being liberalized, or relaxed, by a government. Liberalization means relaxation of various government restrictions in the areas of social and economic policies in order to make economies free to enter in the market and establish their venture in the country. Liberalizing trade policy by the government includes removal of tariff, subsidies and other restrictions on the flow of goods and services between countries. Liberalization is the result of New Industrial Policy which abolished the "License system" or "Licence Raj".

Forms of Liberalization

The government of India has adopted several measures of liberalization. Some of these measures are as under:

(a) Liberalization for industrial licensing: In India, it was mandatory to obtain license before liberalization for setting up certain industries. After liberalisation, all industries except six specific industries were liberalized i.e., free from obtaining license.

Those Six non-liberalised industries were drugs and pharmaceuticals, hazardous chemicals, explosives, tobacco products, alcoholic drinks, and electronic, aerospace and defence equipment. Currently, only five industries are under compulsory licensing. Drugs and Pharmaceuticals industry has been liberalised.

(b) Freedom for expansion and production to industries: Earlier government used to fix the maximum limit of production capacity. Now the industries are free to decide their production limits by their own on the basis of the requirement of the markets.

(c) Increase in the investment limit of the small industries: Investment limit of the small scale industries has been raised to Rs. 1 cr. So these companies can upgrade their machinery and improve their efficiency.

(d) Foreign Exchange reforms: The first important reform in the external sector was made in the foreign exchange market. In 1991, as an immediate measure to resolve the balance of payments crisis, the rupee was devalued against foreign currencies. This
