Indian Developmental projects in Afghanistan

- The restoration of the Stor palace in the same city.
- Rebuilding of the Habibia High School, also in the capital, and providing it with grants-in-aid.
- Financing the establishment of the Afghan National Agriculture Sciences and Technology University (ANASTU) in Kandahar and assisting it in various ways.
- Constructing the Chimtala power substation in Kabul.
- Building the cricket stadium in Kandahar; Lets Afghanistan's national cricket team use an Indian stadium as its home ground.
- Building a cold storage warehouse in Kandahar.
- Upgrading telephone exchanges in some provinces.
- Expanding the national television network.
- Digging tube wells in some of the provinces.
- India has donated buses, helicopters, Ambulance etc., to Afghanistan.

interests, development projects, and citizens are kept secure.

India should leverage the goodwill it enjoys among the Afghan people. India must intensify its dialogue with regional and global stakeholders, and impress upon them that any dialogue with the Taliban must not come at the cost of the hard-fought victories of the Afghan people in the past two decades; on establishing constitutional democracy and the rule of law, and securing the rights of women and minorities. It is time for India to engage the Taliban to secure its interests. India also needs to reassess its policy choices in close coordination with Russia and Iran, constantly reminding them that complete surrender to the Taliban's demands will be detrimental to their own security.

10.2 India – Pakistan Relations

History has been uncharitable to India and Pakistan, two close neighbours who, just a little over seven decades, shared geography, culture, religion, language, and the very ethos and philosophy of life that sustained an ancient civilization. The bitter partition of India and Pakistan, led mass migration amidst horrendous violence as Muslims fled to Pakistan and Hindus and Sikhs to India in millions. The tragedy that began at the time of partition continues to have effect until this day in forms of wars that both countries fought and the menace of terrorism for which both countries are victims.

Kashmir Imbroglio

The region of Kashmir is at the heart of hostility between the neighbours and was the cause of two of their three wars since independence from Britain in 1947. Under the partition plan provided by the Indian Independence Act, Kashmir was free to accede to either India or Pakistan. The Maharaja of Kashmir, Hari Singh, initially wanted Kashmir to become an independent nation - but in October 1947 chose to join India, in return for its help against an

12th_Political Science_Unit_10.indd 212 07/12/2022 15:33:24